

The Muninn Necklace Larceny: Witness & Suspect Testimony

Target Asset: Muninn Necklace ($3.8M value) • Incident Date: October 14 • Interview Phase: Initial Post-Incident (October 15)

Olivia Kane

POSITION: Curator, Historical Collection DATE: October 15

INVESTIGATOR: Detective Division

Q: Please state your role at the gala and your involvement with the Muninn Necklace.

A: I oversee the Blackwood Historical Collection and was responsible for the exhibition pieces, including the Muninn Necklace. I also handled the scheduled donor viewing.

Q: When did you last see the necklace before the theft was discovered, and what was its condition?

A: I inspected it at approximately 6:20 PM. It was present and appeared to be in good condition.

Q: Describe what happened with the necklace during the evening.

A: It was temporarily removed for a scheduled donor viewing, which is standard for certain foundation events. That was around 7:25 PM. The necklace was taken from the display case to the preparation room beside the exhibition hall, where a small group of donors viewed it under supervision before it was returned.

Q: Who had access to the necklace during that process, and were any guests allowed into the preparation room?

A: Myself, designated foundation staff, and security personnel assigned to the exhibition area had access. Guests were restricted to the viewing area. Access to the preparation room was limited to authorised personnel only.

Q: Did anything unusual occur during the donor viewing, and did anyone stand out to you that evening?

A: Nothing unusual stood out. The event proceeded normally. Mr. Victor Hale did spend a considerable amount of time examining the necklace earlier in the evening, which I noted because he asked several questions about its provenance. That said, he is known for collecting historical artifacts, so it was not necessarily suspicious.

Q: When was the theft discovered, and what led you to realize the necklace had been swapped?

A: During the post-event inspection, shortly after 9:20 PM. At first glance, it looked normal. Only on closer examination did I realize it was not the original.

Q: Is there anything else investigators should know?

A: Only that whoever did this understood our procedures. This was not random. The person responsible either knew how the exhibition was operated or had taken the time to learn.

Victor Hale

POSITION: Private Collector

DATE: October 15

INVESTIGATOR: Detective Division

Q: Please state your reason for attending the Blackwood Foundation Gala and your familiarity with the Muninn Necklace.

A: I attended as a donor and guest of the Foundation. I was already familiar with the necklace and had followed its history for several years.

Q: Did you have any interest in acquiring it?

A: Yes. I made an inquiry several years ago, but the Foundation informed me it was not for sale. I accepted that decision.

Q: Witnesses reported seeing you examining the necklace. Can you explain that?

A: I spent some time viewing it and asking questions about its provenance. As a collector, that's hardly unusual.

Q: Did you enter any restricted areas or attend the private donor viewing?

A: No. I remained in public areas throughout the evening and spent much of that time speaking with other guests.

Q: Did you handle the necklace at any point?

A: No.

Q: Is there anything else investigators should know?

A: Only that if I wanted the necklace, I would have preferred to purchase it rather than steal it.

Ethan Cross

POSITION: Security Supervisor

DATE: October 15

INVESTIGATOR: Detective Division

Q: Please describe your responsibilities during the gala.

A: I supervised venue security, monitored staff assignments, and responded to any incidents that occurred during the event.

Q: Were there any security issues that evening?

A: A minor alarm was triggered elsewhere in the building at approximately 7:50 PM. I responded personally and determined there was no threat.

Q: Did you observe anything unusual around the necklace display?

A: No. Security checks were completed as scheduled, and nothing appeared out of the ordinary.

Q: When do you believe the theft occurred?

A: My assumption is that it happened sometime during or shortly before the alarm response, but that's only speculation.

Q: Is there anything else investigators should know?

A: Whoever stole the necklace understood the venue and avoided attracting attention. Nothing about the theft appears impulsive.

Amelia Voss

POSITION: Freelance Journalist

DATE: October 15

INVESTIGATOR: Detective Division

Q: Please state your reason for attending the gala.

A: I attended to cover the event and gather material for a feature on charitable foundations and cultural preservation.

Q: Where did you spend most of the evening?

A: Primarily in the ballroom and exhibition areas. I spoke with guests, took notes, and conducted a few informal interviews.

Q: Did you enter any staff-only or restricted areas?

A: No. I remained in publicly accessible sections of the venue throughout the event.

Q: Were you familiar with the Muninn Necklace before attending?

A: Only generally. I knew it was one of the Foundation's most valuable artifacts, but I wasn't there to write about the necklace specifically.

Q: Did you notice anything unusual during the evening?

A: Not particularly. The event seemed well organized and uneventful from my perspective.

Q: Is there anything else investigators should know?

A: No. I left shortly before the event ended and wasn't aware there had been a theft until the following day.

Adrian Blackwood

POSITION: Founder, Blackwood
Foundation

DATE: October 15

INVESTIGATOR: Detective Division

Q: Please describe your involvement in the gala.

A: I hosted the event and met with donors, guests, and foundation partners throughout the evening.

Q: What is the significance of the Muninn Necklace to the Foundation?

A: It is one of the most important pieces in our historical collection and a centerpiece of many public exhibitions.

Q: Were you aware of any security concerns before the theft?

A: No. The event proceeded as expected, and I received no reports of serious issues.

Q: Did you have access to the necklace during the evening?

A: No. The handling and security of collection items are managed by curatorial and security staff.

Q: Is there anything else investigators should know?

A: The theft is deeply disappointing. The Foundation's purpose is to preserve history, and I hope the necklace is recovered quickly.
